
TURN ATTENTION INTO CLIENTS

The Content-That-Books-Calls Playbook

Turn “so helpful!” into “I need to work with you.”

FREE GUIDE • NO. 4

Likes feel good and pay nothing. A save is someone planning to help themselves later — without you. Here's how to make content that books calls instead.

The difference

GETS LIKES

Generic tips. Ends with a “value bomb.”
Teaches everything. Feels nice.

GETS CLIENTS

Names a specific pain. Ends with an ask.
Teaches the what, sells the how.

The Pain · Proof · Path framework

- 1 Pain — name the exact problem your dream client lies awake about
- 2 Proof — show a result, a before/after, a win
- 3 Path — tell them the precise next step (an actual ask)

The 5-part hook formula

- 1 Call out — “If you’re a coach doing X...”
- 2 Name the pain — “...and you’re stuck at Y.”
- 3 Flip it — “here’s why it’s not your fault.”
- 4 Show the path — “the real fix is Z.”
- 5 Ask — “want help? DM me.”

10 plug-and-play hooks

- “You don’t need more followers. You need this.”
- “Why people watch your content and never buy.”
- “Stop making save-worthy posts. Make DM-worthy ones.”
- “3 reasons your audience isn’t booking calls.”
- “Your best content is getting you likes and zero clients.”
- “The mistake quietly costing you clients.”
- “A big audience and still broke? Here’s why.”
- “What actually happens between a like and a payment.”

THE “SO WHAT?” TEST

After every post, ask “so what — and what do I want them to do?” If a stranger can watch and have no idea how to work with you, the post did half its job. Always close the loop.

Want this done for you?

Getting the attention but not the clients? That gap is usually the last line. I'll show you.

I build the whole system for coaches — the page, the booking, the follow-up — so you just show up to booked calls. And I'll show you exactly where you're leaking clients first, free.

TWO WAYS TO START
